A Title Across the Page

This introduction runs across the full width of the page above the two columns, as an abstract or a standfirst would.

The first column starts here and continues along with ordinary words to fill a few lines of the column.

The second column starts here and carries on in the same way until it ends.